

To whom it may concern

Cook Legacy is a small business that designs and builds water intake systems. As we grew we needed to expand our drafting capacity. We had three concerns—simplicity, accuracy, and cost. Indsys offered the best combination of our needs. Through Indsys we've been able to turn around projects faster, cut drawing costs, and offer solutions we could not offer while remaining competitive in our marketplace. There have been three other benefits—because of the time difference Indsys acts as a virtual “second shift,” the faster turn-around in drawings has improved our business to the point where we can bring on more people domestically, and because it is cost effective to make detailed drawings earlier we have better working drawings early on in the project which helps for both change management and project control. I would give my unqualified recommendation for Indsys Computers.
